What is the Regional Conference on Women in Latin America and the Caribbean?

The Regional Conference on Women in Latin America and the Caribbean, one of the subsidiary bodies of the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC), is the region's foremost intergovernmental forum on women's rights and gender equality. Its sessions are organized by ECLAC, as the Secretariat of the Regional Conference, with the support of the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women). It is convened every three years to identify the status of women's autonomy and rights at the regional and subregional levels, present recommendations regarding public policies on gender equality, and undertake periodic assessments of the activities carried out in fulfilment of regional and international agreements on the subject.

The first session of the Regional Conference on the Integration of Women into the Economic and Social Development of Latin America, held in Havana in 1977, was convened by the secretariat of ECLAC, as decided at the seventeenth session of the Commission, two years after the World Conference of the International Women's Year (Mexico, 1975) and in the framework of the United Nations Decade for Women.

Thus far, the member States of ECLAC have held 13 sessions of the Regional Conference, at which they have examined the progress and challenges in relation to women's autonomy and equality and have agreed upon an ambitious, deep-reaching and comprehensive Regional Gender Agenda. The Montevideo Strategy for Implementation of the Regional Gender Agenda within the Sustainable Development Framework by 2030 was adopted by the Governments at the thirteenth session of the Regional Conference. It represents a tool for putting into practice the commitments undertaken and achieving the Sustainable Development Goals in line with the priorities of the Latin American and Caribbean region.

Who convenes the sessions of the Regional Conference?
